

Analytic Contents

Preface   xiii

PART ONE: LIBERALISM AND THE POLITICAL ORDER

- 1 Liberalism in Crisis   5
- 2 Liberalism and Ethics   18
  - The Good and the Right   22
  - The Socialization of Ethics   28
  - The Metanormative Solution   33
- 3 Liberalism's Past and Precedents   42
  - The Nature of Liberalism   44
  - Natural Rights   62
- 4 Why Individual Rights? Rights as Metanormative Principles   76
  - The Basic Right to Liberty   76
  - Rights as Metanormative Principles   78
  - Human Flourishing—Objective but Plural   79
  - Human Flourishing—Profoundly Social   81
  - Requirements for Metanormativity   83
  - Justifying the Political/Legal Order   84
  - Human Flourishing—A Self-Directed Activity   86
  - Self-Direction as the Basis for Metanormativity   88
  - Protecting the Possibility of Self-Direction Among Others   89
  - Understanding Individual Rights   91
  - Why Individual Rights Trump   92
  - A Major Objection Considered   94
- 5 The Natural Right to Private Property   97

PART TWO: A NEW DEEP STRUCTURE FOR LIBERALISM

- 6 Individualistic Perfectionism 111
  - A Cautionary Note and a Brief Discussion of Method and Metaphysical Context 115
  - An Outline of a Neo-Aristotelian Version of Perfectionist Ethics 127
    - 1. Objective 127
    - 2. Inclusive 129
    - 3. Individualized 132
    - 4. Agent-Relative 134
    - 5. Self-Directed 138
    - 6. Social 141
  - The Role of Practical Wisdom 143
- 7 Defending Individualistic Perfectionism 153
  - Universality and Agent-Relativity 153
  - Objectivity and Individuality 156
  - Agent-Neutrality and Practical Reason 158
  - Justice and Human Flourishing 160
  - Desires and Self-Direction 163
  - The Function Argument 167
  - Pluralism and Human Flourishing 170
  - The Role of Moral Virtue 171
  - Considering John Gray's Dismissal of Perfectionism 173
- 8 Natural Law and the Common Good 184
  - New and Traditional Natural Law Theory 185
  - Natural Law and the Common Good of the Political Community 197
- 9 Self-Ownership 206

PART THREE: DEFENDING LIBERALISM

- 10 Communitarian and Conservative Critics 225
  - The Challenge of Communitarianism 225
  - The Challenge of Pluralistic Communitarianism 244
  - The Challenge of Natural Law Conservatism 251
  - The Challenge of Eudaimonic Conservatism 257
- 11 The Structure of the Argument for Individual Rights 265
  - Individual Rights as Metanormative Principles 265

	From Human Flourishing to the Natural Right to Liberty	268
	Section I: Human Flourishing: Individualized and Profoundly Social	269
	Section II: Liberalism's Problem	271
	Section III: Finding an Ethical Basis for Metanormative Principles	273
	A. Self-Perfection, Constituent Goods and Virtues, and Money	273
	B. Practical Wisdom, Practical Reason, and Self- Direction	275
	C. Self-Direction as the Basis for Metanormativity	277
	Section IV: Individual Rights: Protecting the Possibility of Self- Direction Among Others	279
	Section V: Justifying the Political/Legal Order: The Question of Legitimacy	282
12	Defending Individualistic Non-Perfectionist Politics	284
	The Metanormative Dilemma	286
	Once Again, Why Respect Rights?	288
	Conceding Rights	292
	A Worry About Neo-Aristotelianism and Rights	294
	Rawls, Justice, and Metanormativity: Are There Other Metanormative Principles Than Rights?	296
	Is the Concept of "Metanormative Principles" Really Necessary?	301
	Making Self-Direction Possible for the Extremely Poor	303
	Bonded Flourisher Argument	311
	The Need for Agent-Neutral Values	313
	The Absent Telos	317
	Agent-Centeredness	319
	The Acceptability Problem	322
	Metanorms Are Biased	323
	The Issue of Symbolism	327
	Self-Sufficiency	330
	What if Men Were Angels?	333
	Conclusion	338
	Epilogue: From Metanorms to Metaphysics	340
	Index	347